

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The image processing method and apparatus receive at least one of photographed image data, temporary camera control information, additional information and indication information of a desired processing content from the camera and reason out or create at least one information of information relating to photographing control, information relating to image processing and information relating to a photographed image, in accordance with the at least one which have been received and preferably supply the at least one information reasoned out or created to the camera. The camera includes an image sensor, an input unit and an information sending/receiving unit. The photographing system includes the camera and the image processing apparatus.